

A perspective diagram of a rectangular concrete slab. The slab is supported by two vertical concrete walls on opposite sides. The top surface of the slab is divided into a grid of squares by reinforcement bars. In the center of the slab, there is a square area containing a more complex grid of reinforcement bars, possibly representing a column or a specific structural detail.

